DEATH THREAT LAID TO OFFICER

The opinions expressed in this column are the personal views of the writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the management; in fact, many times they do not.—Milnes.

THE QUINTS' HEART AFFAIRS

The Dionne quints must be getting along when college professors begin considering their matrimonial prospects.

But college professors, at least some of them, are that way, you know, and should not always be taken too seriously.

The girls, it seems, are likely to be beautiful and petite and also OLD MAIDS. Anyway, so say the learned professors.

The fact that they were abnormally small at birth gives them an advantage in looks, for "small babies are usually better looking than large babies;" which makes clear the long-puzzling problem, to me, of my own lack of pulchritude. I was a heavy baby.

But they are also likely to be "manhaters," (according to the savants, owing to their segregation from other children when young.

Time alone will tell how correctly their horoscope has been cast by the professors. The chances are roseate that the learned gentlemen are all wet—that the quints will be ugly, man-crazy and will marry at early ages.

It seems obvious enough to us of the common herd, who are not permitted to breathe the rarified professorial mental atmosphere that the special attention abnormal scolicitude SHR. . VBG m vbgqkmo solicitude and museum-like environment in which they exist, will do something or other to their psychologies.

Will they be able to live the free, natural lives of other children, or will they be conscious, throughout their entire existence that they are still under a glass case?

My guess is as good, I believe, as that of the professors, and I do not know a darn thing about it. One can always profitably raise chick-

NEW AUSTRIA DICTATOR IN PEACE MOVE

VIENNA, May 14.—UP—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's first official act of international importance as uncrowned dictator of Austria was to extend the olive branch to Italy and Hungary tonight.

Schuschnigg telegraphed Premier Benito Mussolini and Premier Julius Goemboes expressing the Austrian government's and his personal friendliness towards them.

TO FOLLOW TREATIES

The new strong man of Austria emphasized his country's determination to "continue the true and tested policies of the Rome protocols and the friendship among the three partners for further consolidation of Central Europe."

Meanwhile, he moved swiftly to disarm Prince Ernest Rudiger von Starhemberg's Heimwehr troops and thus prevent possible revolution as an aftermath to last night's bloodless coupe d'etat.

TO DISARM TROOPS

Disarming the Heimwehr, which claims 120,000 members and is a dominant political force, is expected to be completed before June.

Elimination of the troops as an armed unit will shear Starhemberg of the last vestige of the near-dictatorial power he exercised as vice chancellor up to last night, when Schuschnigg presented his and the cabinet's resignations to President

War Threat Is Again Hurled By Mussolini

PARIS, Friday, May 15.—UP—Premier Benito Mussolini, in a statement published by Le Matin today, warned the world that any attempt to increase economic penalties against Italy would be at the risk of war.

Interviewed by Leo Gerville-Reache, Rome correspondent of the newspaper, Il Duce recalled his threat of last September that application of military sanctions to halt Italy's conquest of Ethiopia

G MEN MAY BE CALLED INTO HUNT

McALLESTER, Okla., Friday, May 15.—UP—Guards Tuck Cope and Victor Conn, hostages of the eight convicts who escaped Wednesday from the State prison, were released shortly before midnight near Antlers, prison authorities said early today.

McALESTER, Okla., May 14. UP—Officers closely pursuing the eight leaders of a murderous prison break at the Oklahoma State penitentiary reported tonight that the fugitives had crossed the State line into Texas.

If the fleeing desperadoes took their three hostages across the State line, they violated the Lindbergh anti-kidnaping law and thus opened themselves to pursuit and prosecution by G-men.

MURDER CHARGES

The escaping prisoners already face murder charges for the assassination of C. D. Powell, superintendent of the prison brick plant. Powell was forced to ride from the prison into McAlester along with guards Tuck Cope and Victor Conn, both of whom were wounded.

Powell was shot through the head by his convict captors, presumably when he sought to block their escape. It was when the fugitives stopped near Blanco, Okla.,

POLICEMEN SUSPENDED IN S. F. QUIZ

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—UP—Death threat charges were placed against Officer J. C. Farrell tonight as a climax to a day of bitter developments in muddled police affairs.

Captain Charles Skelly, secretary of the Police Commission, accused Farrell of threatening to shoot him.

ARE INDICTED

Farrell, and three fellow officers were indicted by the grand jury last night on charges of burglary and conspiracy. They were accused of breaking into a drug store owned by Dr. Thomas Shumate, a member of the police commission, and taking $100 in cash and valuable liquor.

Captain Skelly insisted that Farrell, shouting at him when he met him in a restaurant today, said:

DENIES CHARGES

"You're the one who's persecuting me. If I had a gun I'd kill you right here."

Skelly also claimed that Farrell endeavored to strike him, but was restrained by two waiters.

Farrell flatly denied making the death threat or any attempt to strike his superior officer.

HECTIC DAY

With Officers Sydney Hinson and Thomas T. Miller he likewise denied the burglary and conspiracy charge. The fourth officer indicted, John J. McKenna, was included in the charge because he failed properly to report the drug store robbery, according to Assistant District Attorney August Fourtner.

Arrest of Farrell followed a hectic day in which Police Chief William Quinn suspended Captain Frederick Lemon, Captain Thomas Hoertkorn and Patrolman Joseph Brouders for their refusal to testify before the grand jury last night in its investigation of alleged graft and vice pay-offs.

Hoover Raps Collectivism Of New Deal

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—Herbert Hoover, assailing President Roosevelt's policies were driving the people "into a collectivist desert," tonight asked the Republican party to fight for a "restoration" of governmental morals and a "revival" of confidence "in the destiny of America."

Hoover said several New Deal structures should be revamped, among them the social security act, and that unless the Administration's economic policies were reversed there would be "only increased poverty."

The former President said he had been "exposing the New Deal for what it really is" during the past year "only because the Republic is in great peril."

Addressing the Republican women of Pennsylvania, Hoover called attention to the fact that the forthcoming Democratic national convention is to be held here.

"I trust these gentlemen will bare their heads before Independence Hall," said the former President. "Under the invisible presence of the men who founded a nation that liberty might live, they should apologize to the American people. Instead they will produce splendiferous alibis."

Trial Halted In Fraud Case By Witness' Death

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14—UP—Death of a government witness today temporarily halted the trial of 19 defendants in the West American Gold mine fraud case in the federal district court.

Jean Dietschy, 60, the witness, had testified he bought the mine stock at $1.15 a share on the promise it would double in value, but finally sold it at seven cents a share.

Dietschy was still testifying when stricken suddenly with an heart attack. He died soon afterwards.

Ben Blue, Los Angeles, one of 13 defense attorneys, said he would ask for a mistrial when the case is resumed because the death of the witness made cross-examination impossible. Federal attorneys were of the opinion a mistrial would not be allowed.

The government charges the defendants used the mails to defraud hundreds of investors out of more than $500,000 through their misrepresenting the value of the stock and through bucket-shop operations

Hospital Escape Fools Officer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14—UP—Al Poulsen, son of a prominent Santo Rosa business man, escaped from the Belmont State hospital with the unwitting aid of a traffic officer, it was revealed today.

The youth slipped from the hospital, commandeered an automobile and when stopped in San Mateo by a traffic officer, impatiently told him he was a Department of Justice agent and had to rush to San Francisco.

The officer obligingly offered assistance, it was said, and led Poulsen into the city at a mile-a-minute clip with his motorcycle siren screaming to clear traffic.

Poulsen has not been reported since the officer parted from him here and his family said he had not gotten in touch with them.

STANAVOS WIN CLOSE CONTEST FROM CALOLS

Behind the air-tight pitching of Vigre, the Stanavos team of the Standard Oil Twilight League last night defeated the Calol club by a score of 2 to 1.

The game was one of the best witnessed for many years at the local lot and was the best exhibition staged by Standard Oil teams this year.

Vigre, star Stanavos hurler, allowed only three scattered hits and fanned six men. Olson was touched for four by the Stanavos.

In the first canto, Brenzel got a bit and was sacrificed to second by Parker; Krasovich flew out and Brenzel went to third. Zimmy Zimmerman reached first base on an error by White and Brenzel scored on the play.

In the third inning the Stanavos put across another run when Brenzel drew a walk, was sacrificed by Parker to second and scored on Krasovich's hit.

The lone Calol run came in the third inning. Lamarra was issued a walk; White hit; Bussa walked and Cullers fanned. Vigre lost control for a minute and walked Connolly, to score Lamarra.

The scoring ended there for the day and from then on base hits were few and far between.

CARDINALS IN STRIDE BEAT DODGER TEAM

NEW YORK, May 14—UP—The St. Louis Cardinals, back in slugging stride, pounded four Brooklyn Dodger pitchers for 16 hits and a 12 to 4 victory today.

The New York Giants kept right behind the Cards as Carl Hubbel shut out the Chicago Cubs 5 to 0. Hubbell gave only five hits to hand the Cubs their fifth straight loss.

The third place Pittsburgh Pirates put on a five-run burst in the eighth inning to win over the Boston Bees, 5 to 2, and even the series at one all. It was Ray Benge's first defeat of the year.

Philadelphia at Cincinnati was postponed because of cold weather.

The New York Yankees took the series from the St. Louis Browns two games out of three with a 6 to 1 win. Joe Di Maggio, rookie outfielder, led the Yanks' attack with three doubles and a single in five attempts. The Yankees hit safely in every inning for a total of 15 safeties off two hurlers.

The Boston Red Sox kept a tight hold on second place with their second victory over the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 1.

Dusty Rhodes set the third place Cleveland Indians back with three hits as the Philadelphia Athletics won 4 to 0.

Chicago's White Sox climbed into fourth place ahead of the Detroit Tigers by outslugging the Washington Senators 13 to 12.

PASSENGERS, CREW SAVED FROM LINER

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, May 14.—UP—While the disabled liner North Sea listed badly, her hold full of water, north of Dixon's entrance tonight, the overloaded Coast Guard cutter Alert, proceeded toward View Cove to discharge some of the ship's passengers.

The Alert picked up 144 passengers and 38 members of the crew, after the North Sea crashed on a rocky reef in heavy weather at Point Marsh, 50 miles south of Ketchikan, early today.

SOME ON SHIP

A skeleton crew remained on the liner, protecting the rights of her owner and awaiting additional pumping equipment. It was believed she could be reflcated and brought into Ketchikan under her own power.

The North Sea left Seattle Monday midnight, on her regular run to Alaska ports, carrying a general cargo. Among her passengers were Dr. F. A. Thompson, president of the Montana State School of Mines, and 20 of his students, enroute to Alaska on a geologic field trip.

WAS OFF COURSE

The ship apparently was forced off her course by the heavy winds and seas of the past two days. She hit the reef, hard, and stuck fast.

Capt. A. W. Nickerson, master of the North Sea, had passengers aroused and life boats put in order. He sent out the first distress call at 3:30 A. M.

At 6 A. M., with a rising tide, the North Sea floated off the reef, but was unable to proceed with her damaged hull.

SHIP ABANDONED

At 11 A. M., as water rose in her hold, and the North Sea settled lower in the waves, Captain Nickerson ordered her abandoned, except for a skeleton crew. The removal of the passengers was orderly, and the life boats were lowered without trouble.

Late this afternoon the Alert reached the scene and picked up the men and women from the boats. The addition of 174 persons to its own 22 men overloaded the 125-foot cutter, and her commander thought it inadvisable to attempt the trip to Ketchikan.

The North Sea, formerly the Admiral Peoples, is 229 feet long, with gross tonnage of 3,133. She was built at Elizabethport, N. J., in 1918.

TWO WOMEN ON STAND TELL OF VICE RACKETS

NEW YORK, May 14.—(UP)—Dorothy Arnold brought her records—green cards with holes punched in them—into Supreme court today to tell in her businesslike manner how she ran a house of prostitution that contributed part of the $12,000,000 a year income to Lucky Luciano's alleged vice ring.

From two witnesses, Dorothy Arnold and Mary Thomas, a blonde in green dress who worked in the Arnold house, Special Prosecutor Thomas E Dewey got stories that he said were typical of the organization that finally seized control of all New York vice through bribery, shooting and intimidation.

The girls were there as witness against Luciano, New York's Public Enemy No. 1, who, with nine alleged accomplices, is on trial charged with compulsory prostitution.

Solons Bent On Revising Tax Ac...

WASHINGTON, May 14—The Senate Finance Committee, apparently bent on wide revision of the House tax bill, today received Treasury schedules through which $62,000,000 could be raised by imposing a flat tax on corporate income with a graduated levy superimposed on the basis of undistributed profits.

"We are getting to the point where the committee can pass on matters of policy."

Commons that the final decision the respirators had not been decided upon, but assured the members all would be of British manufacture.

Santa Fe, Espee Still Quarreling Over Bus Service

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14—UP—Differences of opinions between railway officials marked the hearing before the State Railroad Commission today on the Santa Fe railway's application for certificate to operate a co-ordinated bus and train service between San Francisco and Southern California points.

James B. Duffy, assistant traffic manager of the Santa Fe railroad, said he believed the train-bus service was practical and that the proposed one and one-half cents a mile rate would increase travel.

Felix S. McGinnis, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, said he could see no advantage to the public in such service and that the Southern Pacific operated in that manner in certain sections and did not find it practical.

Santa Fe officials testified they would install steamline trains by 1938 if given the certificate to operate, and that, recognizing the service would appeal principally to middle-class people, would agree to provide a first-class service if there was sufficient demand for it.

See Increase In Population Of California

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—UP—Californa's population has increased 12 percent during the past six years rather than decdeasing seven-tenths of one percent as the U. S. Census Bureau reported, the State Chamber of Commerce claimed today.

N. H. Sloane, general manager of the chamber, made this statement in a telegram to Rep. Albert Carter, Alameda county member of Congress, who asked if the Census Bureau estimate was correct.

The present population of California is 6,360,000 and not 5,639,000 as the Census Bureau reported, the State Chamber said. Sloane said the figures were compiled by Paul Lane, statistician for the California Taxpayers' Association, who arrived at the total through the use of approved and accepted scientific means.

PREVENTING PROLAPSUS

The term prolapsus is used to describe the condition which results when the vital organs sag or fall from their normal positions. Through the use of the X-ray, we have discovered that fully 90 per cent of all women who present themselves for examination are suffering from prolapsus in some degree. The percentage is low with men, being only about 10 per cent of all male patients who are examined.

This great difference is, no doubt, due to the fact that men generally have stronger bodies and are much more likely to have developed strength in the important abdominal muscles.

The principal cause of prolapsus is a systemic weakness. The weakness exists all over the body and its effects are seen in many of the tissues, including muscular tissue. Consequently, the abdominal muscles are weak and unless special attention is given to the development of these muscles they will not be strong enough to hold up properly the stomach, intestines and other organs of the abdomen.

The result of this weakness is that the stomach which should be located just under the ribs, approximately in the center of the abdomen and above the navel, slips down, often to the very bust of the pelvis with the large and small intestine sharing in this downward sagging.

The undesirable effects of prolapsus include digestive distress, underweight due to interference with assimilation, nervousness, and also the special disorders of women. Very often, a persistent backache which seems to indicate a weakness throught he lower part of the back is caused primarily by prolapsus.

The only way I know for a woman at any age to avoid sagging or falling of the abdominal viscera is to take systematic exercise, giving special attention to the setting-up exercises which strengthen the abdominal muscles. The following exercises are ones which I have chosen as being especially beneficial in preventing prolapsus.

The following exercises are to be taken while lying on the back:

1. Hands extended over head. Raises the upper portion of the body. Keep the knees stiff and touch the legs with the finger tips reaching as far toward the feet as possible.

2. Raise the knees alternately to the chest and return. Raise the knees together to the chest and return.

3. Raise and lower legs, alternately, keeping the knees stiff and the toes pointed downward.

4. Raise and lower both legs together, keeping the knees stiff and the toes pointed downward.

5. Raise right leg to right angle with body, keeping the toes pointed downward, then change position of right and left legs vigorously, without allowing the heels to touch the floor. Try to breathe naturally during this exercise.

6. Hands clasped behind head—slowly raise the arms, head and shoulders as high as possible, attempting to come to a sitting position.

Take these exercises morning and evening and do each one several times, increasing the number of times as you grow stronger. In the beginning, take the exercises slowly to avoid muscular soreness. You will be pleased to find that the abdominal muscles respond to the exercises by an improved tone and by a desirable firmness. You may also be sure that strengthening the muscles in this way will be the best method to follow in preventing prolapsus, or fallen organs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Curative Power of the Body)

Question: D. and N. ask: "We read your column regularly and find it very interesting. We do not understand how the body cures disease; do you believe that the body has the power to cure itself of the social diseases, cancer, and tuberculosis?"

Answer: I am pleased to know that you find my articles of value. In the treatment of tuberculosis, I find that the best method is to have the patient adopt those good habits of living which enable the curative forces to come into play. In the treatment of the infectious social diseases it is necessary to use antiseptics or injections in addition to placing the patient on a better dietetic regimen. Cancer is in itself a serious disorder and most methods of treatment employed do not cause a spontaneous "cure." It is possible to give the patient relief so that the pain is not so severe, or it is possible to remove the cancerous tissue by surgery, but in an advanced case of cancer, no positive hope for recovery may be held out to the patient.

Certainly, the normal body has the power to overcome mild attacks of tuberculosis and it is said that examination of the lungs would show that every one living in cities has at some time undergone a mild tubercular infection which the body was able to overcome in such a way that the patient did not realize that tubercular activity was taking place. The curative power of the body is most marked in the acute diseases but it may also be enlisted in overcoming many of the chronic disorders. In the majority of instances, nature and nature alone does the healing and the treatment we use may either help or hinder that healing process.

MURDER AND COMEDY MIXED IN FOX BILL

Following a five-year wait, all that Chaplin fans ask in a Chaplin picture is Chaplin and they will get him in a full measure in "Modern Times" which is now playing at the Fox theater on a double bill with "Moonlight Murder"

Employing many of his old, familiar tricks with modern slants, plus several new and riotously hilarious gags, and best of all, the sock of actually hearing him sing, a ditty reminiscent of "Valentina," done with inimitable pantomine and some unintelligible species of pig Latin, advance reports have said that Charlie has done very well by himself.

The comedy, which introduces the familiar figure in the big shoes and baggy trousers into the relatively complex environment of a big industrial city, casts Charlie as a factory worker with a talent for getting out of jobs and into jail. He subsequently finds employment in such widely divergent capacities as shipyard worker, night watchman and singing waiter.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Moonlight Murder" the added screen attraction has picked itself the most unusual setting yet for a tale of mysterious homicide. This is the "Hollywood Music Bowl Under the Stars" and the time is rehearsal period for a grand opera production.

The new suspsnse film lis's among its players Leo Carillo, Madge Evans, Chester Morris, Frank McHugh, Grant Mitchell, Benita Hume Katherine Alexander, Duncan Renaldo and many others.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, May 14—White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre is essaying a new role. Not only is he handling the President5s appointments, as always, but now has also voluntarily assigned himself the job of adviser on shipping legislation.

This question is the most strife-ridden one of the Congressional session.

The ship operators, backed by Secretary Dan Roper and Senator S. Copeland of New York, are trying to put through a bill that would throw the Treasury wide open to their demands. Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, with the support of the Post Office Department, has offered a measure abolishing the exorbitant ocean-mail grants, substituting instead a moderate and carefully safeguarded ship subsidy plan.

Copeland, by quick parliamentary strategy, got his bill reported in the Senate. But Progressives, both Democratic and Republican, have announced that if he attempts to secure enactment they will filibuster.

And to emphasize their determination to end shipping raids on the Treasury, the Progressive struck the $28,000,000 item for annual ocean mail payments under the existing contract system out of the Post Office appropriation bill.

This maneuver put the ship operators, and their champions Roper and Copeland in a dilemma. They got to come to terms with the Progressives—or there will be no more Treasury taffy.

The shipping lobby, one of the most active in the Capital has been moving heaven and earth behind the scenes in an effort to get the operators out of this hole. And a few days ago McIntyre brightly volunteered a solution to the President.

He proposed that a rider be attached to the Second Deficiency Appropriation Bill, now in the Senate, restoring the $28,000,000 ocean mail item "for a temporary period."

NOTE—Close friend of McIntyre's is Jim Barnes, lobbyist for the shipowners association.

VICE PRESIDENT GARNER

Vice Presidents of the United States usually are best known for their homespun qualities.

Vice President Marshall, in Woodrow Wilson's day, became famous for his remark: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."

Charlie Dawes was famous for his "Hell 'n' Maria" profanity. Charlie Curtis became famous as a dinner-out, and Jack Garner probably will go down as the greatest poker player in the history of Capitol Hill.

Jack is a member of the Bears' Club, where the stakes are high and the sky is the limit. The minimum pile of chips with which you can enter a game costs $500.

At the end of one Congressional season, Jack figured up in his little black book that $68,000 was still owed to him. All of it, incidentally, was paid, except for a few hundred owed by one man.

By saving his winnings, and by careful investment in real estate Jack Garner at one time just before the depression was reputed to be worth a million dollars chiefly from poker.

On the trip to the Philippines last autumn, Jack was engaged in a poker game when at midnight Mrs. Garner tried to induce him to come to bed. But Jack was between $400 and $500 ahead.

About 3 A. M., however, he came to bed.

About 3 A. M., however, he came into his stateroom.

"How much did you lose?" inquired Mrs. Garner sleepily.

"A hundred dollars."

"Go on back there and win it back," said his wife.

And he did.

ALLIES

Chief Justice Hughes and Postmaster General Jim Farley see eye to eye on one issue.

This is not an April Fool story. Here are the facts:

Early this session a bill was introduced to create two new federal judgeships in the southern New York district, to relieve overburdened courts in that area. The measure had the warm backing of the bar and the courts.

It was all set for passage when suddenly Senator Royal S. Copeland claimed that the bill was "personally obnoxious" to him. In keeping with unwritten Senate law, the New York Senator's wishes were deferred to and the measure was tossed in the waste basket.

Not many remember it, but last year Coeland introduced a similar bill. And that was why this new bill was "personally obnoxious." It involved New York patronage and Jim Farley had not consulted him.

But several hours after the carnation-wearing New Yorker had scuttled the bill, Chief Justice Hughes made a speech before the American Law Institute, in which he spoke of the urgent need of relieving congested court calendars.

"There are still some sore spots," he added, "and where delays are most serious they are due to a failure to provide an adequate supply of judges to attend to the work of the courts. That is notably the case in the Southern District of New York. The Judicial Conference has repeatedly recommended that additional judges be provided."

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, May 14—Harvard University traffic experts are holding public drivers' tests at the New York Museum of Science and Industry in Radio City. The experiments measure color blindess, sensitivity to headlight glare, brake reaction and other similar accident factors. Drop in and find out whether you're a road menace. . . . The Waldorf Men's Bar has a guest book where visitors sign up. In the list is Mayor La Guardia's autograph, followed by that of former Mayor Jimmie Walker, who added underneath his name: "The King is dead—long live the King" . . . . Beatrice Lillie's pet canary, "Greasy" goes along with the actress on tours. It's a nice bird, except for the fact that it wakes her up every morning at dawn. . . . Ken Murray, the comedian, pilots his own plane. But not for love or money will he go on a merry-go-round. . . The mystery of the bulging curtain between acts of "Victoria Regina" is solved. Stage hands at the Broadhurst use the intermissions to practice golf. They smack balls made of fishnet squarely against the curtain whenever the stage manager isn't looking. . . Biggest newspaper man in town, according to poundage, is Heywood Broun. And also one of the most charming.

RHYMESTER—Pob Lee, the singing poe'" is running up something of a record at the Wivel restaurant. Lee is the fellow who answers in rhymed verse any question that a patron may hurl at him during the floor show. His poetic responses pop back without an instant's hesitation, and the sillier the question the better he likes them.

Most night club entertainers last a month or two at the longest, but Lee has been the featured star at the Wivel for three and a half years with undiminished popularity. His act is the only one of its kind in town, and customers come back repeatedly to see if they can trip him up.

The Wivel itself is an excellent Swedish restaurant, with a genuinely wholesome and gay atmosphere unusual in the Midway's night life. It's a favorite with women especially who help boost the family trade.

And if you can stump Lee with a query, he'll pay you $25 cash down.

RAGGED—One afternoon about a year ago, I was seated in a mid-town hotel bar with a representative of a large sweepstakes organization. He was a very pleasant fellow, and he was using all his skill to intrigue my professional interest in his scheme.

Sensing a story quite different from the one he was peddling, I began questioning him about the financial set-up of sweepstakes generally.

"You know," I said, "I wouldn't be surprised if a big lottery scandal breaks one of these days."

My companion almost dropped his highball glass. "W-why," he stuttered, have you heard anything unusual?"

"No," I parried, "but when so much money is involved, there's bound to be crooked work somewhere."

He accepted my philosophical observation with a grunt, and five minutes later had beaten a hasty retreat from the room.

A few days ago postal authorities caught up with the officials involved in the sweep. They were arrested here in what federal agents claimed was a $3,000,000 swindle. The names of "winners" had been copied from gravestones, and the charitable institution supposedly sponsoring the scheme was found not to exist at all.

I'll keep hiding my money in my stocking.

Overtime Pay Suit Is Taken To High Court

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14—UP—The Ferry Boatmen's Union today took to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals its appeal from a ruling of the U. S. District Court, which refused to grant judgment against the Southern Pacific Railway and the Northwestern Railway in a suit over overtime pay.

The union contends that overtime pay amounting to $48,000 and interest amounting to $26,000 is due 225 employes, who worked 12 hours a day for six months during 1928.

The State railway labor act, they said, provided that the working day should be fixed at eight hours and the defendants had failed to live up to an agreement with the union to compensate workers who were employed longer hours.

CRIMSON WARNING

By RICHARD SALE

© 1936 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Jane Hall, girl detective, is summoned to the home of Emery Harding on Skeleton Island, off Maine, to guard his daughter Audrey, whose life has been threatened in a letter typewritten in red, demanding that Harding relinquish a valuable ruby he bought from an old sea captain Albert Santrey. He also sends for his friend Bruce Kirby, young museum curator, who identifies the ruby as a historic gem believed to have been part of Captain Kidd's loot, and makes the startling suggestion that Kidd's treasure is buried on the island! Santrey is murdered; then one of the servants. When Robert Castian, one of the numerous house guests, is caught supposedly trying to get the ruby, he is handcuffed to his bed, though he insists he knows nothing about the murders. Then Harding is attacked, and hovers between life and death. When Jane and Kirby find Castian gone, having sighed the handcuffs with a hairpin, they realize he could have made the attack on Harding.

CHAPTER XXIV

JANE unlocked the other cuff from the bedpost and tried to stuff the bracelets into her bag. They wouldn't fit. She decided to carry them in her hand.

"But where can he go?" she demanded. "Can he get away from the island?"

"He might," said Kirby. "I'll see."

He walked to a house telephone on the wall, removed the receiver, and pressed a button marked "Servants' Quarters." In a few seconds, a voice answered.

"I want to speak to Mr Benet Mr Kirby speaking."

"This is Benet. What's wrong, Mr Kirby?"

"Say, Fred, will you run down to the boathouse and see if both the speedboats are there?"

"Sure thing!" said Benet. "What's happened?"

Kiry told him everything that had occurred ending with the news of Castian's escape.

"I'm afraid he may have taken one of the boats to try to make the mainland. It's urgent that he be caught."

"I'll go right down to the boathouse," said Benet excitedly. "Phone you back as soon as possible."

"Righto."

KIRBY hung up and faced Jane. "Where's Adele Castian?"

"I don't know. She was in the living room."

"Let's see her."

They went down. Madame Le Roux and Audrey were just getting ready to retire. No one else was in the room.

"Where's Mrs. Castian?" asked Kirby.

"Isn't she in her room?" Audrey queried.

"No," said Jane.

"That's queer. She said she was going to bed."

"She did!" exclaimed Kirby.

"Mon Dieu, Monsieur Kirby," said Madame Le Roux, "what is wrong with that? She may have wandered out on the veranda."

"No, she isn't there, either," said Kirby. "It's darn strange. Did Mrs Straater retire too?"

"Oh, yes, quite a while ago."

"Well, thanks," said Kirby. "Good night."

"Bon nuit, mes enfants. Do not stay up too late. Tomorrow is another day, you know."

Jane and Kirby waited until Aubrey and the Frenchwoman had gone upstairs, then followed, returning to Castian's room.

HARDLY had they entered when the house phone buzzed. Kirby leaped to it.

"Hello!"

"Mr. Kirby," said Benet, "one of the boats is gone. He must have taken it. Loaded it up with gas, too. There are a couple of empty tanks in the boathouse."

"Confound it!" said Kirby. "Flown the coop! How far is it to the mainland?"

"Twenty-two miles. Er—there's the plane, Mr. Kirby. Want to chase him?"

"Can't. Have to stay here."

"Say," said Benet, "I'll go after him, Mr Kirby!"

"What can you do from the ship?"

"I'll scare the living daylights out of him," vowed Benet. "Man, you don't know what I can do with that plane. I'll force him to turn around and come back."

"Okay," said Kirby. "If you want to try."

"And say," said Benet, "telephone to Emmville and get hold of the sheriff. They can keep a lookout for the speedboat in case I miss it."

"I'll do that," said Kirby. "Good luck, youngster—and thanks."

HE HUNG UP and went to the outside phone to try to get the mainland. He was met with absolute silence. The line was dead. He swore under his breath and turned to Jane.

"The wires have been cut!"

Jane looked at him helplessly. "Now what?"

Kirby sighed. "I don't know. We should have called before. But in all the excitement I completely forgot about it. Why don't you head into bed, young lady? You must be dog tired."

"I am." She made a wry face. "But I don't feel like sleeping. I wish I could be sure Castian is the killer and that he is en route to the mainland!"

"Why?"

"I'd close my eyes with the idea of opening them again tomorrow. And I'd feel better about you."

"Oh," said Kirby. "Think the killer may still be on the prowl?"

"If he's still on Skeleton Island, yes. Why shouldn't he? You and I know a secret, Bruce that has caused the death of two persons."

"The treasure?"

"Exactly."

"In that case, Ludwig is also in danger. Especially since an attempt was made on his life."

Jane let a ghost of a smile flit across her lips.

"I have not the slightest doubt that Ludwig is safely entrenched behind barred doors tonight!"

"DON'T LET this business get you down," Kirby said. He stared at her for a moment without seeing her. "You know, Jane, Castian tricked us."

"What do you mean?"

"Well after all, if the story he told were true, why should he run away? What had you against him? Not murder. At least, not any more than against any one else on the island. Not theft. He did not actually steal anything. The only charge you had against him was being in his host's room without permission. He pulled the wool over our eyes with that cock-and-bull story about how he was up against the wall for using company funds and was just after the ruby. His running away can mean but one thing—that he's the murderer, not just a would-be jewel thief."

"That doesn't necessarily follow," said Jane. "He may have run away, not because he was afraid of a murder charge but because he was afraid of those authorities who would get him for fraudulent use of funds."

"Oh, of course," sighed Kirby. "Lord, but I'm getting dull! I'm going to stop thinking about it for the night. Jane, why don't you go to bed?"

"I will," she replied. "And the devil with murder! If any one wants to do away with me, let him! I'm so tired I don't care!"

Kirby went with her down the hall to the door of her room.

"Good night," he said, and kissed her.

"Good night—darling."

PEACE PLAN IS SUGGESTED IN DAIRY STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—UP—Harold Claudius, secretary of the Consolidated Milk Producers Association, said today that "demands for cut and dried union recognition by dairy workers," now on strike in Marin county, formed the greatest obstacle to successful peace negotiations between employers and workers.

Edward Vandeleur, president of the State Federation of Labor and of the Central Labor Council, completed a detailed peace proposal after a conference with representatives of the Producers Association and presented it to union officials today. Details of the plan were not announced but it is designed to prevent a sympathy strike of union milk delverymen here, who have announced intention to support the striking Marin county milkers.

If this plan is not accepted, Vandeleur said, the dispute will be taken before Mayor Rossi again next Wednesday. It is understood officially that Rossi has threatened that the city will deliver the milk itself if strike action is taken. Meanwhile members of the Producers Association will vote Tuesday on whether they will agree to union recognition.

Japan Refuses To Give Up Islands

TOKYO, May 14—Hachiro Arita, foreign minister, said today if Germany's campaign to recover her lost colonies ever extends to the mid-Pacific islands Japan holds in mandate, it will meet Japan's unshakable resistance.

To an interpellation in the budget committee of the lower house, Arita replied: "It is ridiculous to raise such a question at this time. Japan's right to those islands is a settled fact. The Japanese Government is determined never to relinquish them regardless of where the question may be raised."

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD May 14—UP—Sylvia Sidney, before taking a "school marm" role before the cameras, visited six Los Angeles public schools with a director to learn how teachers dress.

What they saw exploded the traditional conception of a teacher as a prim and slightly dowdy professional woman.

"I felt it wise to do this," said the star, explaining her tour with Director Fritz Lang, "to avoid the possibility of over or underdressing for the part. It would have been just as foolish to appear in an expensive fur coat as it would to have worn a dress that looked like it was used for heavy housework. I wanted to see exactly what teachers are wearing."

Her ensemble for her role in the picture, "Mob Rule" is an almost exact duplicate of the clothing worn by teachers they saw.

The changes include a henna tweed coat and hat; navy blue crepe dress; tan wool suit, worn with blouse and sports felt hat; dark brown wool suit, with hat and blouse; for a bedroom interior, blue figured robe over plain blue pajamas (the teacher told her about this one; she didn't see it).

"One of the surprises of my visit," said Miss Sidney, "was to learn that many of the younger teachers buy their really nice things from an expensive Hollywood shop that specializes in catering to high-salaried movie people.

"Just remember that, whenever anyone maligns the taste and chic of our modern school marms."

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Sunlight May Be an Excellent Aid in Treating Disease, or It May Be a Curse

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

IN THE use of sunlight for the treatment of disease, caution and commonsense are of vast importance. Too much direct sunlight is often worse than none at all. Even a strong healthy person may be made uncomfortable and sometimes seriously sick by too great exposure to the sun if he is not accustomed to it. Those who make a business of treating disease by sunlight have reached the conclusion that some very definite rules must be observed. One of the best known authorities, Dr. Rollier of Switzerland, approaches the direct use of sun rays cautiously. Most of his patients are greatly weakened by disease and coming to the mountains from the lowlands they must become acclimated.

DR. CHRISMAN

For ten days after admittance they are rolled out into the open, which is shaded from the sun, and the entire body is kept covered. After about ten days Dr. Rollier allows exposure of the feet to the sunlight for five minutes, three times a day, with exposures never less than an hour apart. The next day ten minutes is allowed for the feet and five minutes for the legs. This slow gradual exposure continues till at the end of thirty days the entire body can be exposed for from three to five hours and the body is bronzed to a beautiful brown.

Absorb Rays Slowly

Exposure begins at the feet to prevent any congestion of the lungs, headache or dizziness. Much harm has been done with resulting condemnation of the method, by exposing a tubercular chest to the sun rays before the system has become adjusted to them. Early exposure of a diseased lung to direct sun rays sometimes causes pain and congestion, with fever and extension of the trouble.

Artificial sunlight, by the means of light and sun lamps, is not nearly as helpful as real sunlight. These artificial rays are more direct, they contain too much ultra-violet and should never be used except by those well trained in the work, with a thorough knowledge of their effects.

Sunlight in the mountains is theoretically much better than in the lowlands, but in actual practice the results are very much the same. The cleaner air of the mountains is better.

More time is required to obtain the same effect in the lowlands and the seashore, but the difference is not great. In the tropics, direct sunlight is often too hot and shade and artificial light from the water or earth give the same results. The greatest and most successful use of sunlight is in the treatment of diseased bones, particularly those due to tuberculosis. The only cure for tubercular peritonitis is sunlight.

Sunlight Cures Disease

Recovery from these conditions is one of months and years. These patients are usually children and they are already crippled and are growing worse. Systematic exposure to real sunlight will ease the stiff, deformed joints and close up the abcesses and sinuses caused by the decaying bone. It often leaves them strong and healthy and able to carry on a normal useful life, when otherwise they would be hopeless cripples and invalids.

All this can be done in their own homes, once the best method is found, and they can study, read and receive a good education, so that they may not be hampered after recovery. Tuberculosis of the lungs can be treated the same way, but only with great caution. Tubercular glands — so-called scrofula — responds promptly to sunlight, but the building-up process must be carried on by slow stages if we would avoid overdoing it.

This Newest Monarch Has Vast Charm

By TALBOT LAKE

OLDER monarchs of the world gradually are being eliminated and a set of younger kings holds sway. Newest among them is King Farouk of Egypt, raised to the throne by the recent death of his father, King Fuad.

He is only 16, but wherever he goes this handsome fellow seems to create a most favorable impression. Since last Fall he has been a student at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, England, and he has been living at Kenry House, an old mansion on Kingston Hill, near London.

He is a big youth for his age, possessed of excellent appearance and good health. Combined with these are discerning tact and a direct and winning manner. He is remarkably self-possessed at public functions and his British associates have always reckoned him older than his real age.

His father, Fuad, was not considered a particularly popular sovereign. It is not generally questioned, however, but that he served his country well. In science and culture Fuad tried to raise Egyptian standards and he did display dignity and wisdom. But it is the young king to whom Egyptian subjects turn hopefully to lead the nation through many problems, even though he is but a youth.

His studies and training in sports were conducted under the supervision of King Fuad according to a strict program. His tutor in England was Ahmed Bey Hassane, an Egyptian explorer, and his suite included a military tutor, an aide-de-camp, a physician and a religious teacher. English tutors gave him special instruction, and while he was enrolled at the Woolwich school, he rarely visited it more than twice a week.

It is interesting that, called to Cairo by his father's death, Farouk declined the offer of a British destroyer, preferring to travel home by Channel steamer and by railway to Marseilles and steamship to Egypt.

When he motored to London from Woolwich he presented an unusual picture. He wore a black overcoat, a black suit and a red fez.

Relax With Right Kind Of Exercise

By JACQUELINE HUNT

CONTRARY to the idea that most of you have, exercises are not taken for reducing alone. Frequently exercises are advisable for improving the appetite and filling out the contours of a person who is underweight; sometimes they are needed for relaxation and sometimes to improve the posture and general muscle tone.

All of you can afford to spend some time learning to relax through the right exercises. The hurry and strain of modern living make you forget how to relax. Muscles become tense, the circulation poor. As a result the skin is blemished, the scalp taut and dry and the gums tender.

So learn to relax! Take a tip from your pussy cat. Stretch frequently to straighten your spine and when you have a minute to spare, let yourself go completely. Exercises that improve the flexibility of the entire body, without putting undue strain on any one part, are best.

MISS HUNT

Go at all exercises gradually. Begin by repeating the movements about four times at first. The next day do them a little longer and so on, increasing the dose as your muscles become accustomed to them. Exercises taken in this way will not leave your muscles sore after the first treatment.

For this exercise, kneel on a rug or mat with your hands clasped behind your back. Hold the head up and, keeping the back flat, slowly lower the body first to a sitting position on the heels. Hold a second, then pull the head down, round your back and slowly return to the first position. Repeat ten times.

For the second exercise get on your hands and knees with your back flat. Pull the right knee forward to your chest and lower the head. Then stretch the leg backward as high as possible, with the foot extended and the head raised. Repeat with the left leg, alternating five to ten times with each leg. This exercises the neck, back and leg muscles.

Now roll over on your back with your hands at your sides, the knees raised. Draw the knees up slowly toward the chest, raising the hips off the floor as much as necessary. Raise and lower five times. Replace the feet on the floor and relax.

Everything you do while you work about your house or your garden is a form of exercise. See that it is beneficial exercise, by doing it properly. When you lift something, get down as far as possible under the thing to be raised. Then push up with the hip and abdominal muscles.

When you stoop to lift things from the floor, bend the knees with one foot ahead of the other. Stoop, keeping your back straight. Lean forward for better balance when you climb the stairs—or a mountain. When you sit, press the small of your back and your hips against your chair. This keeps your posture good. When you walk, swing your legs forward from your hips and thighs. Keep your head up and pull in your abdomen.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Can you help me plan my spring wardrobe? I want something slenderizing to my figure. I am short and fat. I also have gray hair that I wear in a fluffy bob and a rather florid skin. Any suggestions for make-up and a new hair arrangement would be appreciated.—Mrs. Turner."

ANSWER: Rather softly draped, yet well-fitted dresses with narrow belts and side closings would be most becoming to you. Perhaps you would like one of the tailored coat dresses in dark, light-weight woolen for cool mornings, a tiny print with white touches for afternoon wear and a heavy crepe in soft blue or violet for evening.

Use powder with a beige undertone that will subdue your flush. Be sure that your roube harmonizes with the natural flush and use it sparingly—just enough to give your cheeks and lips some emphasis.

You should have your hair trimmed and thinned to lie fairly close to your head, giving it a sculptured appearance. You might need a new permanent that will keep your wave and ends in place. Have the hairdresser set your hair for you a few times until you master the trick of keeping it in place yourself.

When your face is tired and colorless and your eyes lack their usual sparkle, try applying a small amount of rouge close up to under your eyes: Blend it lightly so that no harsh edges remain. This trick will make your eyes appear more brilliant and enliven your entire face.

There Are Many Methods For Making Liver Tasty

By JUDITH WILSON

ONCE upon a time butchers put aside livers as a special treat for the dogs of their favorite customers. Now dieticians regard liver as one of our most valuable foods and say that we should serve it at least once a week.

Calves' liver is the most delicately flavored of all, but it is more costly than the equally nourishing beef or pork liver. When you consider that there is practically no waste to liver and that its distinctive flavor makes a little go far, you will find that even the choicest is not too expensive for a modest budget.

Good as it is, fried liver with bacon should not be served too often. Many have the notion that it can be prepared in no other way—but there are dozens of other methods of preparing it. Try baked tomatoes stuffed with liver, liver omelette, baked stuffed liver or liver soup. Here are a few suggestions:

DINNERS

Liver and Bacon Broil
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Broiled Tomato Halves
Stuffed Apricot Salad
Butterscotch Cottage Pudding
Coffee

Spiced Pineapple Juice
Liver and Vegetable Stew
with Hot Biscuit Topping
Spring Salad Bowl
Apple-Rhubarb Roly-Poly
Tea with Lemon

Liver Broil

Cut calves' liver into 1½ inch squares and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cut bacon into 1-inch squares. Place on skewers using alternate squares of bacon and liver and a mushroom cap at each end. Spoon a little butter over the meat, lay across a baking pan and broil for 12-15 minutes to brown evenly on all sides. Serve with halves of tomatoes sprinkled with buttered bread crumbs and parsley and broiled with the meat.

Stuffed Liver

Get a whole or half beef liver in one piece. Parboil in a little salted water, if you do not want the characteristic flavor too strong. Cut a pocket in the thickest part of the meat and stuff with a bread dressing well seasoned with salt, pepper, sage and finely chopped onion. Fasten the opening with skewers. Brown the liver on all sides in a hot skillet and add 1 cup water. Lay slices of bacon over the liver, cover tightly and braise over low heat 2 to 3 hours. Serve sliced across the grain of the liver. Creamed potatoes, buttered carrot strips and a tomato salad go well with this.

Baked Tomatoes with Liver

Wash and hollow out 6 large tomatoes. Boil 1 pound beef liver in salted water until tender and chop with ½ cup onion and ½ cup celery. Season well with additional salt and pepper. Stuff tomatoes with the mixture and bake in a buttered pan until tender. Green peppers are also good with the liver stuffing.

Liver-Vegetable Stew

Dice 1½ pounds beef liver and saute with 3 slices diced bacon until light brown on all sides. Add 12 small onions, 1 can, or ¼ pound fresh mushrooms, peeled and cooked in salted water to which the juice of a lemon has been added, 1 cup canned tomatoes, 6 small carrots, 1 can consomme or 2 cups meat stock, 6 medium sized potatoes, peeled, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and salt and pepper to season. Turn the heat very low and cook for about 2 hours. This will serve 6.

Liver Appetizers

Cook 6 chicken livers until tender. Boil 4 eggs until hard. Mince the eggs, liver and ½ onion very fine and mix thoroughly with mayonnaise to form a thick paste. Season well with salt and pepper. Place in a refrigerator to cool. Serve on small crackers or caviar cases with cocktails or tomato juice. This also makes a good sandwich filling.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "If a guest finds himself without a spoon, fork or napkin, how does he go about asking for it?—D. M."

ANSWER: He addresses the waitress, or his hostess if she is doing the serving herself. He says, "I'm sorry. Will you bring me a napkin, please?"

• • •

QUESTION: "After the wedding, in what order is the bride kissed by both families?—S. A."

ANSWER: There is a tradition that the bridegroom be first to kiss the bride. Then come the bride's parents, and her parents-in-law.

QUESTION: "When eating cereal, how should the spoon be dipped, toward one's person or away from it?—F. G."

ANSWER: Away from it, just as when soup is eaten.

What To Do About That Bridal Gown

By IRENE VAIL

New York—If the selection of a wedding dress is among the problems that confront you some time between now and June, you may thank me for telling you that stiffened lace was the choice of one of London's most notable brides.

She chose sheer white stiffened lace with silver thread for her wedding gown. It has a high frilled neckline drawn in with a silver cord, and a long train lined with white tulle. Pearls and diamonds make the halo headdress.

The eight grown-up bridesmaids and the two children will wear full-skirted picture frocks in sheer white silk and cellophane mixture posed over silver foundations, veiled in turn by white organdy. Stitched satin makes the double band at the hemline and the little-boy collars which contrast with the bouffant skirts. Short-to-the-shoulder veils, with topknot of flowers, will be worn by the grown-ups, while the children will have floral wreaths and nosegays to match.

The four matrons of honor have slim, sheath-like dresses of silver lame with high-necked bodices finished by roll collars.

So much for the bride and her attendants.

Now if you are trousseau-minded you will want to know that luggage and London tan with gray stand high in the long list of color combinations, most of which, as befits the season's mood, are unusual. A gray costume accented by shoes, handbag and gloves in either luggage or London tan will stamp you as a bride well versed in the facts of fashion.

Shops are continuing to play up the type of dress that offers itself as an effective background for change, these changes being made by the addition or subtraction of accessories and other details. Printed apron-plastrons are one way to ring in the changes on a basic black dress.

Many other ways are, or will be, suggested. Possibly because of the practicability of such an idea, black dresses continue to be sought for either daytime or evening, mostly in sheers.

London Color Note

London — A coronation color card is to be issued toward the end of this year. It is to be based on "official" colors, meaning those that are used for the robes of state worn by the King, the Queen and peers of the realm.

No step can be taken until the official end of court mourning, in the fall of this year, not to be confused with public mourning which ends this month.

Purple and dark shades of red are prominent among the state robe colors, but it is likely that some more springlike aspect of the coronation will be found to inspire some of the special colors. It is thought in some quarters that a range of jewel colors, taken from the precious stones in the crown worn by King Edward VIII, will be reproduced, but no official statement has been made.

"Wings over Europe and America" seems to be the coming slogan in millinery. Summer collections introduce many pert wing treatments, often lacquered, and also natural dove and gull wings that are white tipped with beige or gray. Tiny lacquered pasted birds are also approved, making especially smart garnitures for spectator sports and suit hats.

MESH VEIL AND FLANGE VEIL

Job and Domesticity Can Go Together Until One Is Greater Than the Other

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

TO WORK or not to work, that is the question the bride of tomorrow faces. She may be tremendously interested in her work. Why, then, is it necessary for her to give it up because she marries?

"My dear Mrs. Martin: The enclosed newspaper clipping has made a deep impression on me. I wonder what you think about it and am sending it on, hoping that you may comment on it. As you no doubt suspect, I am a prospective bride and am confronted by just such a problem. I don't know whether to give up my job or not, and my fiance is leaving the decision to me. I think he would prefer me to give up my work, but I am not really sure. He says he wants me to be happy, and how can he tell whether I would be happy if I gave up my very interesting job to do housework and just think about him? Please read the enclosed and I do hope you will comment on it, if not advise me. Executive."

MRS. MARTIN

The clipping enclosed was an interview with Dorothea Brand, which said in part:

Money and Love

"I think many a marriage has gone on the rocks because a woman has been too competent about making money. In man there is a biological necessity to provide for the loved object. And because that necessity is inseparable from man's nature it is a silly mistake to think it can be dislodged by woman's modern yearning to be independent and to earn her own way in the world. To be considered incapable of providing for the woman he loves destroys a man's pride.

"But there is another side to it and one that is often overlooked. I mean woman's biological need to be cherished. This need is quite as great as the man's need to be a great provider. The more I look around on the modern scene the stronger my conviction becomes that to be cherished is a vital necessity for woman's happiness, certainly necessary before she can give the best of herself in marriage.

"The main fault of the feminine movement was that it tried to turn us into imitation men. It is by emphasizing our womanly traits that we shall succeed.

"I am hoping that the new crop of young women will show more courage for their sex than my own generation did. The thing to do is to get a clear picture of yourself, find out what you can do best and enjoy doing, then live up to your own ideals, instead of waiting to pick up the pattern from a man.

The Job Problem

"I have talked to groups of young women who seemed to be holding themselves as characterless as possible, each apparently hoping that when a man came along they might let themselves be made over into what he wanted them to be. I have told such girls that when a man would come along he would find them so lacking in personality that he would keep right on going."

Whether you, Miss Executive, keep on with your job or not is your own personal problem. I cannot see that on your decision rests the ultimate fate of marriage or husbands in general.

If you do not feel yourself capable of doing a good job of marriage on a part-time basis, or a good job of your present job with a divided interest, you must give your whole, undivided attention to whichever job seems most absorbing to you.

I feel quite confident that there are women who have led active, executive, even exciting lives, who would feel that going through the motions of housekeeping and dreaming of the homecoming of the husband wasn't a sufficiently absorbing job to satisfy an active minded woman. I don't think a wife who prefers to be kept busy is necessarily lacking in an interest in her husband. Why should it be regarded as such? No one expects a man to think about his wife and his wife only, every conscious minute of the day.

Since jobs are hard to get it doesn't seem feasible to give up yours by way of an experiment, for, supposing domesticity fails, it's going to be difficult to get another and probably impossible to get your old job back.

Obviously, then, the only sensible thing to do is to hold on to your job until you are convinced that it interferes with your marriage, at which time you can always resign.

Relaxation Needed Before Bedtime

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

WITH a sigh, mother shut the door to Tommy's room. "He is sleeping at last," she announced. "It took exactly an hour and a half for him to fall asleep. He has been like this three nights in a row. I wonder what ails him? It is not like him to be so restless and active at bedtime."

MRS. GOWARD

Dad replied, "I wouldn't worry about it if I were you. All children get that way once in a while. Tommy'll get over it."

Then, as there was no answer, "Did Tommy spend much time playing out-of-doors today? It is the best thing in the world for making children drop right off to sleep." Dad chuckled. "Come to think of it, I don't understand why he didn't just pop off tonight. I gave him quite a work-out on the front lawn while you were doing the supper dishes. We played Indian. Yes, we had quite a romp."

"And how about yesterday and the evening before?" mother cross-examined. She was beginning to get an idea.

After supper is no time for exciting play. It over-stimulates a child. In this worked-up state he cannot relax. Before one can fall off to sleep, he has to feel at ease. The period before bedtime should be one of quiet play. A child may pass the time with a picture book, a doll, listening to a story or playing with blocks. No matter how hard he may have "worked" during the day, this period will prepare him for bed, providing he has a regular bed hour.

Of course, if a child goes to bed at seven one night, at seven-thirty or eight the next, and at eight-thirty or nine the next, he is bound to resist going to sleep early in spite of a quiet play period. Sleep won't come to him at seven or so when he has had practice staying awake till eight-thirty or nine. A child feels sleepy regularly only when he has a regular bedtime; and when there has been no unusual excitement, either rough play or being fussed with, beforehand.

Always Rinse Woolens

Woolen mufflers, sweaters and gloves will need to be washed before they are stored away for the summer. Woven woolens should be thoroughly rinsed. To insure this, the soap used should be one that is mild and easily dissolved. A water softener is suggested to counteract any possible hardness in the water.

Foods With Vitamin A

Vitamin A aids growth and strengthens resistance to colds and similar infections. Some common food sources for this vitamin are apricots, asparagus, carrots, cherries, corn, fresh prunes, peas, peaches, pineapple, plums, salmon, pumkin, spinach, strawberries, string beans, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, tomato juice. If canned fruits and vegetables are used, do not throw away the juice.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Often because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). They wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny particles of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and mucous surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Don't Take Pills For Constipation

Ordinary pills taken to relieve constipation merely force a movement of the bowels without making the liver disgorge its excess bile. That's why the trouble returns in a day or two and you have to swallow more pills.

Ickes Upset Over Island Riots

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Secretary Ickes said today he took a serious view of independence agitation disorders in Puerto Rico and added "we certainly will maintain order as long as we are responsible."

The Interior Secretary smiled, however, when asked about the request of Representative Zioncheck, D., Wash., he be given a Marine guard for safety. That was before the honeymooning Washington Representative flew to the Virgin islands.

"Governor Winship has a swell set-up and well disciplined body of men at his disposal, the National Guard," Ickes said.

POLICEMEN SUSPENDED IN S. F. QUIZ

prepared contempt charges against the three policemen, who also must appear before the police commission to answer charges of unofficer-like conduct as a result of their "won't talk" attitude.

Superior Judge Elmer Robinson today dismissed contempt proceedings against Sergeant Patrick "Lucky" Shannon, but at the request of Assistant District Attorney Leslie Gillen, after Shannon's answer to the citation, stipulated that he had availed himself of his constitutional rights in refusing to testify.

Shannon "talked" when he first appeared before the grand jurors, but later declined to expand on his statements. He accounted for a $100,000 fortune by saying that he made $25,000 betting on mysterious horse racing tips furnished him in 1923-24 by a man he knew only as "Monk," then made successful investments.

CAPTAIN CITED

Captain Hoertkorn was cited for contempt late today. Indications were a similar citation would be issued against Captain Lemon tomorrow. Patrolman Brouders must appear before Judge Robinson tomorrow to answer a previous citation.

Edward N. Atherton, special investigator, said that evidence against Sergeant Shannon soon would be presented the grand jury, and indictments asked. He declined to reveal nature of the possible charges.

Last night the grand jury learned from various bank employes that Capt. Hoertkorn has savings of more than $47,000 in eight separate accounts. His total wealth was estimated at $70,000.

ing ideas. By this method, he declared, a better understanding among nations would result.

Dr. Palm said that by means of our fast airplanes, trains, steamers and radio the world is getting smaller but less neighborly. He compared the world with an apartment house. He stated that one will not find the same neighborly good feeling in an apartment that one finds in the farm country where homes are miles apart.

The speaker asserted that President Wilson was a misunderstood man, that his ideas were far in advance of the world at the time of the war and that Europe would not listen to him.

Professor Palm was introduced by R. S. Crose, chairman of the Americanization committee of the American Legion.

Commander Barney Kinstrey presided over the session at which time reports were heard and routine business matters were discussed.

An invitation to attend Memorial Day services at First Christian church on Sunday morning, May 24, was accepted by the Post.

Balance Between Supply, Demand Need Of Farmers

SANTA CRUZ, May 14—UP—Permanent adjustment of the balance between supply and demand is the prime need of state agriculturists, R. W. Blackburn, Thermal, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation, said today at the opening session of the State Association of County Agricultural Commissioners here.

A. A. Brock, state director of agriculture, urged uniform regulations in all counties in the state and said that the victory of the state and federal government in enforcing the cattle tubercular eradication program was a definite step toward enlightened agriculture.

The opening session of the convention was attended by representatives from nearly every county agricultural office in the state.

Delegates will formulate a program to be carried out during the next 12 months and hope to coordinate their efforts in securing uniformity in control of agricultural products.

Recent indications point to the hereditary existence and restrictions of princesses for these five babies; but what their hearts may tell them to do when they get old enough to dare may have quite as much effect as to what some guardians tell them of what is regarded for them by these predicting professors.

NATION SECONDS THE MOTION

The entire nation should rise up and second the motion made by J. Edgar Hoover, chief G-man that the designation "Public Enemy" be changed to "Public Rat."

Admittedly there is something that partakes of the nature of glamour in the term we have been using in describing the enemies of law and order and Hoover is keen enough to know it. The argot of the underworld itself includes and defines the word "rat" as the lowest form of humanity. No admiration of the exploits of the desperadoes will be evoked when we label them as "rats" and the use of the term will provide the proper and appropriate rating for them.

Incidentally the past week has materially cut now the number of "Public Rats" which have so long been a menace to society. If Hoover and his G-men keep up the good work their labors and dangers will be materially decreased; however, there always will be fools who will believe they can beat the law, which will call for a continuance of the commendable system which has become such a terror to evil-doers.

G MEN MAY BE CALLED INTO HUNT

that it was learned that Cope and John had been wounded, apparently in the blasts of gunfire which downed nine of the 23 escaping convicts at the prison. Six convicts were recaptured unhurt.

FARMER HELD

The convicts also were holding Wilbur Doak, a farmer whom they had seized near Blanco. The seizure of Doak and stop for a meal at the farm home of Mrs. Robert Taylor revealed that the men had fled southeastward from the prison.

Doak was forced to clamber into the heavily loaded automobile of the prisoners when they came upon him feeding cows on his farm near Blanco, in Southeastern Oklahoma.

WOMAN THREATENED

One of the convicts changed clothes with Doak.

The convicts entered Mrs. Taylor's home with their guns leveled. She was forced to prepare a meal for eight men, she reported. One or more convicts followed her at all times.

From Oklahoma City came word that Governor E. W. Marland was taking a directing part in the search. He said he was ready to call out militia to aid in the hunt.

PROBE IS OPENED

An investigation into the break was opened today with the immediate suspension of those guards who threw down their guns from lookout towers when the rioting convicts threatened to kill Powell with knives and lengths of lead pipe.

Warden Roy E. Kenny and Chairman L. M. Nichols of the State Board of Affairs said that a break had been expected for some time, but that guards believed they were prepared to meet it.

"Deputy Warden Jess Dunn said he 'smelled' it," Nichols said. "Just recently they called all guards in and told them to be on the lookout for a break. They weren't sure where it was going to come, but they saw it coming."

would involve the "danger of remaking the map of Europe."

"What I said to you then regarding military sanctions I say to you now regarding aggravation of economic sanctions," Mussolini was quoted as saying.

Il Duce said Italy is ready to work "passionately" for peace but will not give up the fruits of her victory over Ethiopia without a supreme struggle.

"I consider it monstrous that the process by which we have assured in Ethiopia the necessary expansion for our people should be criticised."

Offer Reward For Return Of Lost S. F. Boy

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—UP—A $2000 reward was posted today for information leading to the return of Eddie Potts, five years old, missing from his home for the past seven days.

The reward was offered by the boy's grandfather, who said the $2,000 represented all he had in the world, an equity in his home.

Eddie, who had run away on numerous occasions previously, is thought either to have boarded a freight train, stowed away on a boat or to have drowned in one of the several creeks or lagoons near his home.

Railway officials reported they had checked every freight car leaving San Francisco since his disappearance without success. Radio messages to all vessels leaving port since last Thursday have failed to bring any information as to the lad's whereabouts.

Wilhelm Miklas, who immediately named Schuschnigg unofficial dictator with almost unlimited power.

IS FROZEN OUT

Schuschnigg already has relieved Starhemberg of command of the politically powerful Fatherland Front and froze him out of the new cabinet which was formed shortly before dawn.

Starhemberg brought about his own downfall by sending Premier Benito Mussolini a telegram congratulating him on the Fascist conquest of Ethiopia. The coup was a smashing blow to Il Duce, who, it was generally believed, regarded Starhemberg as his protege.

NO OPPOSITION EXPECTED

Former Minister of Finance Josef Kollmann, leader of the left wing Christian Socialists, told the United Press the Heimwehr troops will be disarmed as soon as possible.

"We do not expect active opposition," he added.

Meanwhile, Josef Reither, peasant leader, little known abroad, loomed as the force behind the throne. Reither also is governor of Lower Austria. He has organized anti-Starhemberg moves among the peasants in all parts of the country and worked in close collaboration with Schuschnigg to overthrow the Fascist-inclined Starhemberg forces.
